Lunations and Long-term Aspects

This month your sign ruler, Mercury, goes retrograde again which always indicates a time to rethink, re-plan, reconsider, rework, edit, repair or perhaps go back and finish up something that's been languishing in that stack of papers on your desk for far too long. Gemini can multi-task better than any other sign so it's highly likely you can find something you ought to complete and be rid of. Of course there are no coincidences so it's likely that whatever it is was slightly before its time when you started it and now the time may be perfect to get it out there. Mercury stations in Cancer, your 2nd house of finances, possessions, income, needs, comforts and pleasures so this could be something to be looked at now as well whether it's by balancing your checkbook, reviewing your budget or perhaps simply thinking about whether you've been so busy you haven't taken care of yourself like you should.

The aspects in force at the time of the station help define other characteristics of this three week period which can yield more clues on the best way to use this cosmic energy. Mercury is in a closed-loop aspect pattern with Neptune and the Moon which combined with Mercury being in Cancer suggest a dreamy and somewhat emotional element. The Moon is in Libra, your 5th house of self-expression, ego definition, creativity, children, romance, entertainment and speculation. My impression is that there may be something in that part of your life you have a heartfelt desire to pursue but your finances represent a barrier or complication in doing so. Neptune in your 10th house of career, reputation, public image and status could provide some inspiration that can help you make the necessary adjustments to go after what you want. What you want is possible but it's going to take a slightly different approach.

There's an aspect pattern known as a yod, a.k.a. "Finger of God" in there as well which often has a certain element of fate attached, particularly if it connects with your chart. Saturn is at the eye, another retrograde planet that typically has the message to restructure or rebuild something. Saturn is in your 6th house of work, service, employees, health and pets so that is one area to consider; there is almost always something about your work or job that you can reorganize to be more efficient. The base of the yod comprises the Sun in Gemini and Uranus in Aries. If your birthday is right around June 7th the Sun is parked on your natal Sun which is going to bring this home to you more so than others. Uranus is in your 11th house of friends, groups, organizations, networking, goals, hopes and wishes. Uranus is known for disruptions, erratic behavior, nervousness, rebellion, breakthroughs, technology and innovation. This could indicate that a hectic pace in this part of your life is keeping you from staying on-track. On the other hand, it could represent a unique individual would could help you pull all this together. This is where you need to look at that heartfelt goal and what needs to be adjusted in your life and schedule to make room for it.

Venus, Mars and Pluto are also in a closed-loop. Venus is in your 12th house which includes inspiration and your subconscious mind as well as hidden enemies and self-undoing, i.e. self-defeating behaviors. However, Venus is usually friendly and should bring good things your way. Her trine with Pluto in your 8th house of transformation, where he is accidentally dignified as ruler of the zodiacal 8th house, has the potential to bring an important change into your life either through enlightenment or connecting with your subconscious. Pluto also relates to resolving past issues as well. Mars is in Libra, the 5th house where the Moon is, which suggests taking action on that creative project or whatever else is brewing in that area. So over all the theme of this retrograde and thus the month appears to be doing some research, soul searching and reorganizing so that you can go after your heart's desire. Mercury stations direct on June 30 after which you can get started.

The Full Moon on June 12 is in your polar sign, Sagittarius, which comprises your 7th house of close relationships including your significant other, business partners, close friends and relatives, business professionals, competitors, cliental and open enemies. A Full Moon usually brings an ending, culmination or shift to a new phase which in this case relates to one or more relationship. If your birthday is right around June 14 this is likely to have a stronger impact. Jupiter, ruler of Sagittarius, is tied in to the lunation from his position in Cancer, your 2nd house of income, possessions, needs, pleasures and so forth as noted earlier. His presence in your 2nd house should bode well for this part of your life, especially if it's a financial matter holding you back from what you want. H is also indicating a change of course or adjustment event though it will take some effort to achieve. You are clever and smart enough to figure it out. Venus is still in your 12th providing inspiration and insights but her opposition with Saturn implies that your work responsibilities will need to be reworked to make room for doing so, which actually simply reinforces everything Mercury was saying.

The New Moon on June 27 is in your 2nd house of income and such so perhaps this will bring something good your way like a raise, bonus or other benefit. It may come at the price of getting rid of something you really don't need, such as some expensive item or payment you could delete in order to make room for that thing or situation you really want. In other words, it's possible that this benefit will come with a price where you have to decide just how badly you want it. A change of direction of some sort is likely and it's likely to involve some sort of balancing act to pursue what you want. Nonetheless, with some effort it looks as if you can get there even though it may take a few compromises.
