Lunations and Long-term Aspects

This month is fairly quiet except it is time for Mercury to throw it into reverse again which can be a frustrating time. Here we've barely started to get it into gear again since Mars, your traditional sign ruler, pulled out of retrograde last month and now Mercury is going to be throwing "Construction Zone" signs in the path we just barely started down. However, remember that the Universe is smarter than we give it credit for and there is always something to be gained by going with the cosmic flow as opposed to a full frontal assault. Those of you born right around October 27 need to pay close attention since Mercury stations retrograde trining your Sun and those of you born right around November 11th need to listen up as well since Saturn is parked on your natal Sun for this event.

Mercury stations RX in fellow Water Sign, Cancer, which is your natural 9th house of beliefs, expectations, higher education, other cultures, long-distance travel, philosophy of life, religion, politics, and so forth, in other words your intellectual socialization as well as your opinions and attitude. This suggests that you should reconsider something in this part of your life. As the RX period progresses, on June 18 Mercury goes back into Gemini, your 8th house of transformations, intense experiences, shared resources, sex, death and regeneration, inheritances and such, which is where he will station direct the end of the month. So what you need to be thinking about is anything that isn't working with regard to your beliefs which you should make every possible effort to correct. This, in turn, could have a life-changing effect you'll be grateful for later. This could open up new channels that will open you up for greater achievement and success, particularly if there is any old crap lurking in your subconscious holding you back.

Those of you with Saturn parked on your natal Sun may discover something important at this time as well. Saturn retrograde relates to restructuring which in your 1st house makes it at a very personal level. Saturn rules your 3rd house of thoughts, ideas, siblings, neighbors and local travel and is the traditional ruler of your 4th of home environment, cultural roots, memories, endings and new beginnings. Thus, the implications are that restructuring your thought process can impact your thoughts which are what ultimately create your reality. Making some fundamental changes there can usher in a new stage of life. This concept is further reinforced by a yod, a.k.a. the "finger of God" that has Saturn at the eye and a base comprised of Uranus in Aries and the Sun in Gemini.

The Sun is in your 8th house of transformations, already highlighting that part of your life, and Aries, where Uranus is hanging out, is your 6th house of work, service, health and pets. Uranus tends to have a disruptive influence but he is also frequently involved with sudden change, breaking free from restrictions, rebellion, innovation and modern technology. He is exalted in your sign so his energy and yours is relatively compatible. What this seems to be implying is that a major change of direction that will have life-changing effects could occur with regard to your job. It could also involve your health so if you're having any issues there be sure to seek medical help. Accidents are another possibility, particularly on the job, so be obsessed with safety for your own well-being.

It's possible that this Mercury retrograde cycle is going to kick all this into motion as you take a close look at those beliefs and such. You modern sign ruler, Pluto, is moseying along in your 3rd house of thoughts which will also have a transformational effect, particularly with him also tied into a T-square with Mars in your 12th which includes your subconscious, hidden enemies and self-defeating behaviors and Uranus, wanting you to break free.

The Full Moon on June 12 is in nextdoor neighboring sign, Sagittarius, your 2nd house of income, possessions, finances, needs, comforts and pleasures. Jupiter is aspecting the Sun and Moon from your 9th, suggesting a big change of attitude or other shift or adjustment. Uranus, which was noted earlier, is now in a quincunx with Saturn, bring everything together as well. Venus is in your 7th house relationships, which is usually a good thing, and she's trining Pluto in your house of thoughts suggesting someone close to you could help you get rid of any self-defeating thoughts. She is also opposing Saturn, however, which could mean that balancing any restructuring at the personal level with this relationship may be required as well. Deep, personal change can obviously impact your relationship with others, particularly if you discover that person is not good for you in some way. On the other hand, you don't want to throw the baby out with the bathwater, either, so give this matter considerable heart-felt thought.

The New Moon on June 27 is in Cancer, your 9th house, so you can see an ongoing theme at work here as far as your beliefs and expectations are concerned. This suggests something new in this part of your life though it could also indicate a trip, perhaps a long, romantic one that involves crossing, traveling across or in proximity to water, like a cruise or trip abroad. A change of direction relative to work is still in force as well or perhaps the change in that department relates to the trip itself, perhaps making it work-related. Mercury is still retrograde until the end of the month so even if you're enjoying yourself and relaxing, be sure to ponder anything that isn't working in your life, especially as it relates to your beliefs, and see what you can do about changing it to a more beneficial philosophy.
